A Lonely Fall
You Jing

The comic tells a story of a snow falling from the sky. She is lonely because she thinks her life is short and she seems to be born to die. But after the encouragement from a cloud, she finally understands that just because the life trip is short, she needs to make full use of her life and show her existence to the world.

The panel-panel transitions in this work are mainly action to action. In the comics I set two kinds of scrolling, mostly perpendicular with some horizontal. The reader should follow the falling path of the snow girl.

The major problem I encounter is again, I want to tell too many things in a 25-panel comic. I have tried my best to put the main idea into the comic, but still I am not 100% satisfied with it. Also, there are too many text I want to put in so the arrangement of text bubbles is quite troublesome. I have put in a lot of effort trying to make them look better, hope it works! Third, because I want to polish my work to fairy tale book style, it would take a lot of time to do the coloring. But I insist on it and finally make it :), and I like the coloring of my work a lot.
